What is going to be done about the rising unemployment rate? Most people that are unemployed are looking for work and are willing to work. So far the Federal government has provided public service employment for about 300,000 of these 10 million unemployed. And they will all be on the streets by the end of June, unless the Congress passes an extension for these jobs. And if the President doesn't veto the extension.

The President, you see, is against government intervention in the jobs market. Mainly because he claims that government job stimulus and government job creation is inflationary, and because these aren't "real" jobs anyhow. "Real" jobs, he says, come from the private employer. Only the private employer can solve this problem of unemployment, the President keeps screaming.

Well, I suggest that if the private employer is going to solve this depression, he'd better hurry up, Mr. President!

In the meantime, I will continue to strongly push, and urgently support government job creation programs.

Besides, when you're out of work, and don't know where your next dime (notice I didn't say "dollar") is coming from...I don't believe you would quibble over whether you have a "real" job or a "phony" job. Whether it's a "real" job or a "phony" job...a job is a job, Mr. President. RIGHT ON!

LOS ANGELES--California Lieutenant Governor Mervyn Dymally and Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley Tuesday endorsed Governor Edmund G. Brown, Jr. for President.

Their joint announcement was made at a press conference which all three officials attended at Brown for President headquarters.

"No one has been as close a Jerry Brown watcher as I have in the last fifteen months," said Dymally. "I'm satisfied that he has done an outstanding job in California and that the people want him to run for the Presidency."

"People are looking for some leadership that will give them a new sense of confidence in their governmental structures and in the elected leaders of the country," Mayor Bradley commented. "Jerry Brown has provided that in California and I am confident he will be able to carry that message across the nation."

When asked why he had changed from his neutral stand in the Presidential campaign, Bradley said, "Because of the candidacy of a man whom I respect and admire and a man who I believe will offer a great deal to this country."

Dymally has already begun campaigning out-of-state for Governor Brown. "I will be going on the road again and doing a lot of work in California with the Mayor," Dymally said. "Wherever I have the strength, I'm going to use that for Brown."

Washington National Guard Begins Major Recruiting Drive

CAMP MURRAY - As the Washington State National Guard embarks on a major recruiting drive, Captain Jerry Wilkens has a word of advice:

"The key to retention and recruiting in the Guard is to give the people meaningful training."

Wilkens can turn words into action, of course. For he is the commander of Company A, 181st Support Battalion in Seattle.

An enthusiastic leader, Wilkens says, "I feel that the potential of the Washington Guard is enormous."

Not only is the Guard an integral part of the nation's defense network, but the citizen-soldiers who make up the Guard play key roles in the local community as well, said Wilkens.

The Guard is always ready to lend a hand during times of emergency, such a during floods, storms and other disasters, he said.

And the National Guard has a strong record in the area of public service, from building community playgrounds to providing water trucks during March of Dimes fund-raising walks, Wilkens noted.

The Guard also means additional dollars for the communities in which units are located. The money comes in the form of Guardsmen's salaries, Wilkens said.

All this could be lost, however, if the community doesn't support the Guard with needed enlistments, Wilkens warned.

If the Washington National Guard can't maintain its authorized strength, hometown units could be shifted to other states which can support the units, Wilkens said.

Maj. Gen. Howard S. McGee, the Army National Guard's adjutant general here, said Washington needs 420 new members to maintain its authorized strength.

Scout O'Rama at McCord

We all had a lot of fun this last Saturday at the Scout O' Rama. We had about 75% of District #1 units there. I was glad to see the turn out and to meet all of the ones that I have talked on the phone, but had not met in person before. Job well done folks! You can all be proud of the display that our units displayed. We had displays of all kinds, showing the Bi-Centinal year, Uncle Sam was walking around talking to everyone. We also had pilgrims and colonial women in the booths. There was all kinds of indians and a lot of displays showing indian arts and crafts. The Scouts also showed how to pan gold and to make things out what you would call trash. Newspapers, milk carton, plastic bottles, you name it and they made things out it. We had two Handicapped units there from our District, and they did a beautiful job of displaying the things they had done. All the units received a ribbon the work they had done.

The boys will be receiving prizes for the tickets they sold. The prize that they will receive will depend on the amount of tickets that each one sold. There is a nice boat for the boy who sold enough tickets, along with bikes, compassess, knives and a lot of other things. Hope to see all of you there again next year and maybe we will have as nice a day for it, as this year. Bye for this week.

Hope to see some of you at the Mount Rainier Council Pinewood Derby, May 15th at Puyallup Hi Ho Center.

Larceny Equals "Theft"

On July 1, 1976, "Larceny" officially becomes "Theft" (Chapter 9A. 56 RCW). "Theft" is basically defined much the same as "Larceny" was under the old code, but under the new criminal code, "Theft" has been divided into three degrees, according to the value of the property or services taken, as follows:

A. THEFT IN THE FIRST DEGREE is the "theft of property or service which exceed $1,500 in value, or property of any value taken from the person of another." Theft in the First Degree is a Class "B" Felony, punishable by not more than 10 years and/or a fine of not more than $10,000.

B. THEFT IN THE SECON DEGREE: A person is guilty of Theft in the Second Degree if he commits theft of property or services which exceed $250 in value, but do not exceed $1,500 in value. It is also Theft in the Second Degree to steal a credit card, motor vehicle of a value less than $1,500, or public records. Theft in the Second Degree is a Class "C" Felony, punishable by not more than 5 years in an institution and/or a fine of not more than $5,000.

C. THEFT IN THE THIRD DEGREE: A person is guilty of Theft in the Third Degree if he commits theft of property or services which do not exceed $250 in value. Theft in the Third Degree is a gross misdemeanor, punishable by not more than one year in the county jail and/or a fine of not more than $1,000.

As you will note, the most significant change is the increase in the valuation sections, which now require over $250 to charge a felony.

ADVERTISE 627-5597

Sometimes not saying anything is better than saying something. Silence is, at times, the best communication. When you and your man/woman are driving down the street, you are quiet but your hands are touching, you are communicating.

When a friend doesn't say anything, we will probably think that they are mad or upset but perhaps that person is just in a quiet, mellow mood and would rather be in silence. You know how sisters are always talking about something-we need to just shut-up for once and be silence with each other.

People feel that the only way to be close and relate is to talk, which isn't necessarily ture. Being quiet with each other is a nice way to relate through it may seem very closed, but you can get quite open when we think of silence, we think of mourning and sorrow. That's a bad way to look at it. You really don't have to say anything to get your point across all the time. Think about it.

Our chief want in life is somebody who shall make us do what we can.

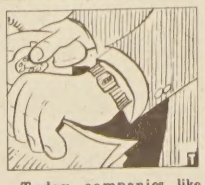
Perfect Timing

Did you know that a watch that's 99 percent accurate actually is "off" 15 minutes a day?



Today companies like Sears, Roebuck and Co. produce solid state digital watches that are accurate to 99.9999981.

This new watch has a mechanism of quartz crystal that vibrates many thousands of times per second to keep the digits slipping away at precisely the right speed. Available in many styles, it's called the quartz solid state digital electronic watch.

Where accuracy is concerned, those thousands of vibes are right!

Census Report Shows Changes in Status of American Woman Since 1900

Women have come a long way in the present century, according to a popular advertising slogan. Measure of just how far are shown in a comprehensive statistical portrait of American women released today by the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce.

The report shows that women and girls outnumbered men and boys in the population-- 109.4 million to 103.8 million in July 1975, and the population advantage for women is projected to widen to a range of 6.9 to 7.9 million by tne end of the century. The last decennial census year in which males out numbered females was 1940, 66.4 million to 65.8 million.

Life expectancy at birth has improved more for women than for men, advancing for women from 48.3 years in 1900 to 75.3 years in 1973, and advancing for men from 46.3 years to 67.6 years during the same period. Life expectancy of women now exceeds that of men by almost 8 years. The median age of women has risen since the beginning of the century from 22.4 to 30.0 years in 1975, the report shows.

The dramatic improvement in the maternal mortality rate in the last five decades has eliminated this as a major cause of death among women. It dropped from 690 deaths related to pregnancy and childbirth per 100,000 live births in the early 1920's to 15 deaths per 100,000 births in 1973.

Three-fourths of all women lived in urban areas in 1970 compared with less than half in 1910, and women outnumber men in central cities of metropolitan areas. The report suggests this is partially because of greater employment opportunities for young women in such areas.

Evidence of a changing social and economic role for women is shown in their increased participation in the labor force. Between 1950 and 1974, the number of working women nearly doubled while the number of men in the labor force increased by one-fourth. Moreover, the report points out that the traditional relationship between labor force participation and such variables as marital status and the presence and age of children has been undergoing a profound change. Among married women with preschool children, the labor force participation rate rose from 12 percent in 1950 to 37 percent in 1975. In 1950, the ratio of women to men who were year-round full-time workers was 29 women to every 100 men; in 1974, it was 47 women to every 100 men.

Although employment of women increased in the 1960's, women workers remained concentrated in a few major occupation groups in both 1960 and 1970 with over half of them working in clerical, operative and service positions. Income differentials of women and men workers remained substantial in 1974; the median income for women who had worked year-round full-time was 57 percent of the median income for year-round full-time working men.

Families headed by women were 13 percent of all families in 1975, according to the report. Further, families below the poverty level headed by women in 1974 accounted for 46 percent of all families in poverty.

College enrollment rates of women rose more rapidly than those for men since 1950, but women were still only 44 percent of college students in 1974. Although younger women are approaching educational parity with men, statistics in the report indicate they have not yet closed the gap. Among persons 25 to 29 years old in 1975, only 77 women had completed 4 years of college for every 100 men with this much education; in 1950 the comparable figure was 66. During the same period, the proportion of women in this age group who completed 4 years of college rose from 6 percent to 19 percent.

Women were victims of two-fifths of all crimes against persons in 1973 (rape, robbery, assault, and personal larceny). The report says that younger women were most victimized by crimes against persons in 1973, with the highest rates for 12-to-19-year-olds and each successive older age group reporting lower rates. Significant differences in victimization were noted for women of differing marital status, with never-married and separated and divorced women having the highest rates and widowed women having the lowest.

Recent trends in marriage and divorce have resulted in an increasing proportion of young women who are single or divorced. Between 1950 and 1975 the proportion of women 20 to 24 years old who were single increased from 28 to 40 percent; during the same period, the proportion of women 25 to 34 years old who were divorced and not remarried increased from 2.5 to 6.8 percent.

The report brings together historical data (1900-1975) from U.S. Government surveys, decennial cenuses, administrative records, and vital statistics. Trends are traced in the areas of population growth and composition, longevity, mortality and health, residence and migration, marital and family status, fertility, education, labor force participation, occupation and industry, work experience, income and poverty status, voting and holding public office, and crime and victimization. Mann's Bits and Pieces

by Dave Mann

Sports Editor

Last weekend 20,470 fans were entertained at the Kingdome by the University of Washington Huskies football team and their annual spring rivals the old grads. We use the term "old" very lightly now because seemingly there has emerged upon the gridiron a new cast of younger players for the grads to replace some of the older wheels and cause havoc in the Varsity camp. Although the Varsity won the annual game 10-7, one was fully aware of the grumbling among the fans about the ineptness and total inability of the Varsity of move the football against the aging grads. Coaching the grads this year were Harrison Wood, class of '68 and Dick Wetterauer ('65). Of course big Ben Davidson was there along with Rick Redman.

It was evident that Sonny Sixkiller still has the admiration of the fans as well as that good right arm as he demonstrated in the first half. With 2 minutes 44 seconds left on the clock Sixkiller fired an 18 yard touchdown pass to Ken Conley over the outstretched arms of defender Nesby Glasgow. It was the first touchdown scored in the Kingdome's short history and sentimentalists were gratified that the pass was thrown by the legendary No. 6, Sonny Sixkiller. The Huskies came right back and got on the scoreboard when starting quarterback Warren Moon spiraled a pass for 63 yards to his old junior college teammate Leon Garrett, for a touchdown that tied the score at 7-7. Nothing else interesting happened in the game until the third quarter when Steve Robbins booted a 32-yard field goal to put the Huskies ahead at 10-7.

Robin Earl, the massive fullback of the Huskies, might have summed up the feelings of all in attendance when he said, "I feel as if we didn't win the game". It just doesn't make sense to this writer that a team of young athletes cannot generate enough offensive thrust to score more than one touchdown against a team of older, fatter, slower and undercoached warriors as the grads appeared to be. Looking on from the sidelines one could only guess what's going to happen to the Huskies around fall time when the PAC-8 opens.

LEE ELDER WINS $40,000..... The first Black man to play in the Masters at Augusta, Georgia, Lee Elder will make that journey again as he came storming from the pack Sunday to make up six strokes on the faltering loaders and win the $200,000 Houston Open with a 10-under par 278. Just 2 years ago Elder made it to the Masters, but was shaken by the pressure and failed to make the cut.

Head Start May Get New Eligibility Requirements

New proposals affecting eligibility requirements and other provisions of the Headstart-Follow Through Act, were published today by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

The proposed regulations enable children between three years old and the age of compulsory school attendance to be eligible to enroll in Head Start programs if they come from low-income families, i.e., if their families are below the poverty line or are eligible for public assistance.

The Head Start program continues to allow inclusion of up to 10 percent enrollment of children who would benefit from such programs but whose families do not meet the low-income criteria. The proposed regulations require that 10 percent of the total enrollment be handicapped children.

Revised income guidelines show which families are to be counted as "low-income" and which as "non low-income." In order to reflect applicable incomes for farm and nonfarm families, separate guidelines have been designated for each of these two categories.

Proposed regulations concerned with Program and Grants Administration establish uniform requirements for the administration of grants and principles for the determination of program costs and also include provisions covering application and eligibility for operating a Head Start program. They also set personnel administration requirements and limitations on the cost of developing and administering a Head Start program as well as objective criteria for increase of the Federal share of the costs of a Head Start program above 80 percent.

Revisions to Policies and Procedures for Selection of Head Start Grantees contain minor technical amendments in order to conform with the provisions of the Headstart-Follow Through Act. Pricrity as Head Start agencies is given to public or local nonprofit agencies which meet established program and fiscal requirements, and which received Head Start funding on January 4, 1975. Revisions are also made to recognize the change in the statute requiring opportunity for a full and fair hearing in cases of denial of refunding and suspension for longer than thirty days.

Interested persons are invited to sbumit written comments, suggestions, or objections regarding the proposed regulations to the Director, Office of Child Development, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 400 6th Street, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20201, on or before June 21, 1976. All written submissions made pursuant to these notices will be made available for public inspection in room 2030 of the Office of Child Development.

JUVENILE'S STATEMENT-ADMISSION IN ADULT PROCEEDING

In State v. Leuma, 14 WN. App. 705 (Feb. 6, 1976), the appellate court ruled, in a first degree murder case involving a juvenile, that a juvenile, in addition to his "Miranda rights", must be told that "adult criminal punishment could result from the statements he made." The court explained that it must be made clear to the juvenile that he is involved in an adversary situation, rather than the non-criminal relationship which frequently exists between juveniles and juvenile court authorities, and that criminal prosecution is possible.

All law enforcement officers should keep the above decision in mind when interrogating a juvenile regarding a serious felony, which may subsequently result in the juvenile being tried as an adult.
